Chatauqua Award

Scott Morris, author of Waiting for April and a professor of English at the University of Mississippi, was honored as the winner of the 2004 Chatauqua South Fiction Award. Now in its sixth season, the award is presented by the Martin County Library System to reward and recognize quality Florida fiction writing. Award committee chair Luann Justak describes this year's prizewinner as "an elegantly crafted southern style novel, with a dash of dark humor and enough mystery to ensnare almost any reader!"

The Library Foundation of Martin County presented the final installment of $100,000 on its commitment of $400,000 to help build the Robert Morgade Library on Salerno Road to the Martin County Board of County Commissioners in November 2003. The mid-county branch library is named in honor of the son of Fran and Andy Morgade. Other citizens joined the Morgades to provide the necessary public funding to qualify for state library construction grants. Shown: Helen Blake, Library Foundation president (3rd from right) with Fran and Andy Morgade (center), Martin County Commissioners (l-r) Susan Valliere, Doug Smith, Sarah Heard, Mike DiTerlizzi and Lee Weberman.

Vi and Mike Chason became 2-star members with their dedication of the Conference Room at the Indiantown Branch Library.

In January 2004 Will Brown (right), president of The Library Foundation of Martin County presented the initial installment of $150,000 on its commitment to help build the Hoke Library in Jensen Beach to Martin County Board of County Commissioners' Chairman
